Surgical Procedure

- Cheek bone should be reduced by bone contouring. The approach is usually through the mouth so no skin incisions are necessary. Rarely are implants placed through a lower eyelid incision.

Risks and Complications

- Bleeding usually comes through the surface of resected bone. However, the use of surgical drains and ice pack immediately applied to the affected area will significantly reduce this risk.
- Infection is an uncommon risk. Prophylactic antibiotics is routinely administered pre and postoperatively. After the intra-oral surgery, you need to clean your mouth with a provided mouth wash solution. Nothing must be taken orally for at least 24 hours.

- A careful preoperative assessment and a complete bone reshaping instruments can prevent such problems.
- The facial nerve may be temporarily disturbed. However, full recovery can be expected.
- The permanent damage is very rare when performed by an experienced plastic surgeon.
- For the mandibular angle resection, there is less chance of injury when using the intra-oral approach than the extra-oral one.

After Care

- Special mouth wash should be applied to preserve oral hygiene in case of an intraoral incision.

Recovery

- The recovery takes one to two weeks. Most people are back to work within a week or two.

-Frequently Asked Questions

FAQ : Criteria

Who is a candidate for Cheek Surgery ?

In general, the best candidates for cheek surgery are people :

- In good physical health.
- Psychologically stable.
- Wanting to add definition to the face, especially the upper face.
- Understanding the healing process.
- Understanding the limitations of the procedure.
- No known allergies to the implant material used.
- Having realistic expectations for the outcome.
- The above is only a partial list of the criteria that your surgeon will consider in determining whether or not this procedure is appropriate for you. Be sure to ask your surgeon if he / she considers you an ideal candidate for cheek surgery.

FAQ : Surgical Procedure

Where will your surgery be performed?

Your operation may take place in an office-based facility, a freestanding surgical center or a hospital outpatient facility. Sometimes, your plastic surgeon may require that you stay overnight. Your doctor will make such a recommendation based on your overall medical condition and whether another cosmetic procedure was performed simultaneously with the facial implant surgery.

How much pain is there?

The amount of pain depends on the method used, and varies from person to person. Local anesthetic is used to reduce pain during the surgery.

How quick is recovery for Cheek Surgery?

Your plastic surgeon will provide you with instructions about post-operative care. There will be dietary restrictions as well as limitations to your activities. Again, these instructions will vary, especially if another procedure was performed along with your implant surgery. However, you should be aware that your ability to move your mouth and lips may be diminished temporarily. Stitches used to close the incisions inside your mouth usually dissolve within about 10 days.

FAQ : Result

What are some of the most common benefits of this surgery?

This surgery can enhance facial contours and brings balance to the facial features. It is also used to correct asymmetries and congenital defects.

What is the long-term outcome like for most people?

Due to swelling, the results of the surgery may not be plainly visible for as long as three or four months. Scars are generally well hidden.
